1. Subscription Plans

NovaCare Technologies provides NovaCare Basic, NovaCare Premium, and NovaCare Business plans. Subscription status is maintained by the Subscription Service and is separate from payment authorization.

2. Subscription Lifecycle

A subscription may be active, trialing, past due, cancelled, expired, or suspended. Changes to subscription state must be reflected by the Subscription Service before support communicates a final status.

• Active: customer has an active entitlement.

• Past due: payment collection requires attention.

• Cancelled: renewal has been disabled or cancellation has completed.

• Suspended: access may be restricted pending account or payment resolution.

3. Cancellation and Refunds

Cancellation does not automatically imply a refund. Refund eligibility is determined using the Refund Policy. Agents must verify plan, billing period, cancellation timestamp, and payment status.

4. Payment Relationship

The Subscription Service depends on successful payment events from the Payment Gateway. A Payment Gateway timeout can create a temporary mismatch between payment status and subscription status. Such mismatches must be reconciled before manually changing entitlement.

5. Customer Communication

Support responses should state the current verified subscription status, the action being taken, and the applicable SLA. Agents must not invent transaction states or promise a refund before eligibility is confirmed.

6. Escalation Triggers

Escalate unresolved subscription/payment mismatches, repeated automatic billing failures, suspected duplicate billing, and cases where the customer remains without expected entitlement after payment reconciliation.
